

Tip 23 - Use the tools at your disposal

- Burn down or burn up charts, which show the amount of work remaining in a sprint or release

- Velocity tracking; where the number of story points (or other metric) completed by the team is tracked for each sprint to show how they are building momentum

- Story mapping; where you engage your team in an engaging exercise of setting up the backlog on the wall

- These tools make for excellent information storage aids and can help you in communicating at all levels, and with all concerned stakeholders within the team along with all outside stakeholders and the management

In Summary

- Use the tools at your disposal